

49 CFR §383.51

- 1. A person required to have a CLP or CDL who is disqualified must not drive a CMV.
- 2. An employer must not knowingly allow, require, permit, or authorize a driver who is disqualified to drive a CMV.
- 3. A holder of a CLP or CDL is subject to disqualification sanctions designated in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, if the holder drives a CMV or non-CMV and is convicted of the violations listed in those paragraphs.
- 4. Determining first and subsequent violations. For purposes of determining first and subsequent violations of the offenses specified in this subpart, each conviction for any offense listed in Tables 1 through 4 to this section resulting from a separate incident, whether committed in a CMV or non-CMV must be counted.
- 5. The disqualification period must be in addition to any other previous periods of disqualification.
- 6. Reinstatement after lifetime disqualification. A State may reinstate any driver disqualified for life for offenses described in paragraphs (b)(1) through (8) of this section (Table 1 to §383.51) after 10 years, if that person has voluntarily entered and successfully completed an appropriate rehabilitation program approved by the State. Any person who has been reinstated in accordance with this provision and who is subsequently convicted of a disqualifying offense described in paragraphs b)(1) through (8) of this section (Table 1 to §383.51) must not be reinstated.

The Intersection of Tribal Courts and Commercial Driving

“You want safe drivers, you want people driving safe on your roads.”

Judges told us why they want to learn about CDL/CMV issues...

- ◇ To avoid gaps in jurisdiction
- ◇ To control the conduct of individuals on our territory

KNOWLEDGE

“I know there’s a lot of rules and regulations, I don’t know any of those. There’s number of miles, hours, like a log they have to keep, and I don’t know anything about that.”

JURISDICTION

84% of participants surveyed want jurisdiction over CDL/CMV cases. But it’s complicated...

COOPERATION

“Our police are through the BIA, and they are recognized as [state] licensed officers as well. They’ll write the ticket, [determining] whose jurisdiction essentially it becomes. If it’s a native, very rarely, but more often with the chauffeurs, the human cargo, they’ll come back to our courts.”

BENCH CARD:
DISQUALIFICATION OF DRIVERS

This Issue Affects All of Us

Commercial traffic operates on Native American reservations. Whether your community has casinos, tour buses, school buses, delivery vehicles, plows, or dump trucks, chances are if you have commerce or civic organizations, you probably have CMVs and commercial drivers.

Many Tribal Law Enforcement Officers are Trained to Identify CMV regulations

Many judges are unsure whether their law enforcement officers are trained in commercial motor vehicle regulations/inspections. In fact, a number of tribal police departments, including Umatilla and Hopi list Commercial Vehicle Inspections (CVIs) on their Police Department websites.

“At most it’s an administrative issue with the department.”

It is illegal for an employer to knowingly authorize a driver who has been disqualified due to a major offense. The conduct of that driver could pose a safety risk to the entire community, or other communities if they move and continue driving somewhere else.

Knowing All the Facts Makes all the Difference

The majority of participants (44%) in a recent survey commissioned by The National Judicial College, and conducted by the Whitener Group and Data Savvy Consulting, were unsure whether their traffic citations included a spot to designate CDL endorsements. Commercially licensed drivers have a higher duty of care, even when they are driving a personal vehicle.

Comprehensive Laws and Consistent Practice Promote Safety

Enacting comprehensive traffic laws, including those which address CDL/CMV issues, promotes public safety for all persons. The enforcement of comprehensive laws is the ultimate exercise of tribal sovereignty.
